

Getting advice

Setting up a business should be an exciting process. But without the right advice it can also be a minefield, particularly where legal matters are concerned. Too often it is not until matters reach crisis point that people ask for a solicitor's help. But by then, if a solution is available, it is much more costly than taking simple preventive action.

Clearly prevention is better than cure. Getting legal advice at the start means that you can avoid crises. A solicitor can help you identify possible problems and take steps to prevent them - protecting your business from risk and saving you money.

Choosing and using a solicitor

It is important to choose a solicitor with relevant knowledge and experience for your needs. The Lawyers For Your Business Scheme is designed to provide small to medium-sized businesses with access to business-related legal advice. It also offers a free initial consultation. For a list of solicitors in your area who are Lawyers For Your Business members, call 020 7405 9075 or visit www.lfyb.lawsociety.org.uk.

Or you can call the Law Society on 0870 606 6575 or visit our website at www.solicitors-online.com.

Legal advice checklist

Solicitors can offer advice on all the typical problems that a new business can face. They can also help you introduce a full range of preventive solutions. To decide what sort of help to give you, they will need to ask you a lot of questions about your business. These questions will cover the following broad areas:

Company structure

The structure of your business will be vital to its success as you start up and expand. Should you trade in your own name or through a company, for example? If you are going into business with others, you need to make sure you get a fair return for your effort, so you might need a shareholders' agreement or partnership arrangement. Your solicitor can explain all the different options and help you decide on the best one for your business.

Your business premises

When selecting premises for your business, it is important that you fully understand the terms of the lease. Can the landlord increase the rent? If so, by how much? Will you find yourself paying ever-increasing service charges? If you choose to run your business from home, what are the restrictions? Your solicitor can help you with all these questions.

Finance

You may also want to find out what sources of finance are available and what their legal implications are. Should you mortgage the family home? Are lenders insisting on unfair terms? Could you be getting a better deal with your bank? Your solicitor will explain these areas and can even help negotiate finance on your behalf.

Taxes

Your solicitor can also give you advice on how to keep taxes to a minimum.

Insurance

Your business may expose you to any number of risks relating to premises, employees, assets and visitors. What if your products or workers injure someone, for example? What if someone is injured while working for you? What if you are legally responsible for an employee who misuses the internet? Your solicitor will give you independent advice on the types of insurance you need.

Cash flow

Cash flow is the lifeblood of any business. Your solicitor can help protect you against bad debts by making sure you use the right terms of trading. They can also give you advice on debt collecting.

Goods and services

When buying or selling goods and services, it is important to know your legal duties. What contract terms does the law lay down? What about product liability? How do you protect your inventions? What can you legally say in adverts and promotional materials? A solicitor can cover all these points in detail and, if necessary, refer you to a specialist.

Franchising

Buying a ready-made business is an appealing option, but what about the small print? All too often, people find themselves trapped in a deal with expensive products and no support from the franchiser. What if the franchise doesn't come up to expectations? Can you get your money back? Your solicitor can give you advice on all the common problems associated with running a franchise.

Licences

Do you need a licence to trade? Your solicitor can tell you if you need one and can even help you apply for it.

Employment

Employment law is a complicated area and is constantly changing. Most employment disagreements are caused by badly-drafted service contracts or dismissal procedures that don't meet legal requirements. Your solicitor can run a health check on your contracts and procedures to prevent these kinds of disagreements.

Disagreements and problems

In business it is usually best to plan for all possibilities. What if you fall out with a partner or fellow shareholder? Can you be forced out? How do you make sure that responsibilities and profits are divided fairly? What will happen to your business if you fall sick or die? Will your husband, wife, partner or home be properly protected? Your solicitor will cover all these questions with you.

Costs

If you find a solicitor through the Lawyers For Your Business scheme, your initial interview is free. Your solicitor will then charge you for further advice at their normal hourly rate or a fixed rate.

Fees vary between solicitors. The overall cost will depend on:

- your individual circumstances;
- the experience and knowledge of your solicitor; and
- the type of advice you need.

For this reason, you should ask for an estimate of costs before you decide to go ahead.
